As a Dorchester resident I have benefited from access to the parish for 50 years, for recreation, leisure, study & work. This document paints a picture of a community & landscape which I know well & which I recognise, not just its assets but also the challenges it faces in future.

The authors are to be congratulated on producing such a well researched, comprehensive, sensitive & balanced document. I have read it carefully & totally support its wide ranging recommendations. It seeks to preserve what is best in the parish whilst acknowledging the need to move forward. I particularly welcome recognition of the climate emergency & the role of the environment & the aspiration towards zero carbon development.

5. Please give details of any suggested modifications in the box below.

There is a putative Bronze Age cemetery which could be of at least regional significance located to the south of the hedge field boundary south of Eweleaze Barn. There are at least 6 ploughed out barrows (tumuli) & although they can only be seen in aerial photographs it is possible the primary burials are still intact.

The barrows were identified due to a reassessment of a post war aerial survey & it is highly probable that there are other ploughed out barrows on the downland leading up to Waterston Ridge. This area has the potential to be as rich an archaeological landscape as Stonehenge with high cultural tourism value. While I acknowledge the pressures created around Bockhampton & Thorncombe Woods, etc, creating additional public footpaths in this area would probably appeal to Hardy scholars as well as people interested in archaeology (cf Rainbarrow, etc) & natural history.

From the site of the putative cemetery you can look across to the South Dorset Ridgeway & get an insight into Dorchester's importance in the Neolithic & Bronze Ages & why it was the site of several henge monuments which would have been the focus of rituals & celebrations on a par with Stonehenge.
