Route 2 (diversion): Chalbury Hil (25 minutes)

There is a STILE, so unsuitable for wheeled vehicles.

To visit the Iron Age Hillfort from point [E]: Turn RIGHT and walk down the road - with care! Use the slight embankment on the right if possible, to avoid cars, but beware if the grass is long - there are dips and holes!

Do not enter the first (larger) quarry but continue a little further to a smaller quarry on the LEFT. (Small 'walking man' sign at entrance.) Turn in and then keep RIGHT to pass through gate and join concrete track upwards. (There is often a large puddle in front of the gate. You can avoid this by diverting left just before it, but this path is steep and narrow.)

As you approach another gate (Good views to Portland and Bowleaze) turn LEFT uphill and onto the top of hill. You can walk around and across to discover remains of Iron Age hut circles, but return to the same gateway.

Through another gate and keep ahead along top of field, with inland views to Sutton Poyntz and 'White Horse'. Though a gateway, then diagonally down to stile to left of the red house ahead. Over stile into short narrow path and on between fences. (This can be very muddy, with running water!) Join Puddledock Lane (and Route I) at [F].

Sutton Poyntz:

To visit Sutton Poyntz millbond (a tourist spot) and The Springhead from F: follow Puddledock Lane to LEFT. At end of lane turn LEFT onto road; keep RIGHT at fork. Chalbury Hill

People were living here during the Bronze Age and on (from about 500 BC) into the Iron Age. It was still inhabited when the Romans invaded 2,000 years ago. Chalbury Hill is one of the earliest Iron Age hillforts in Britain. Hut circles can still be identified on the top of the hill. When trouble was around these farmers probably retreated to the safety of the larger Maiden Castle.

The Melancholy Hussar

The author Thomas Hardy told the true tale of Phyllis, a Bincombe girl who was infatuated by a soldier serving in the York Hussars. However, she was already engaged, so when he tried to desert and return home to Germany she did not join him. Sadly, she then discovered that her fiancée had married another girl. Her secret lover was captured and shot, and was buried in Bincombe churchyard on 30th June, 1801. She, too, is buried there.

The Rimbury Urnfield

This site is world-famous. During ploughing 150 years ago many pottery bowls were discovered in this field below Chalbury Hill. They were burial urns containing cremated human ashes, placed here during the middle Bronze Age (between 1,600 and 1,100 BC). A similar site is at Deverel near Bere Regis. This pottery is now called Deverel-Rimbury ware.

Circular routes to explore the Weymouth countryside

Area 2 Bincombe Sutton Poyntz

Route 1: Bincombe Bumps and Preston (7 km; 4 /2 miles; Approx 2 hours)

Bicycles and buggies can reach the Bincombe Bumps (six barrows on the skyline), but with considerable effort!
